

Short-term Disability Insurance

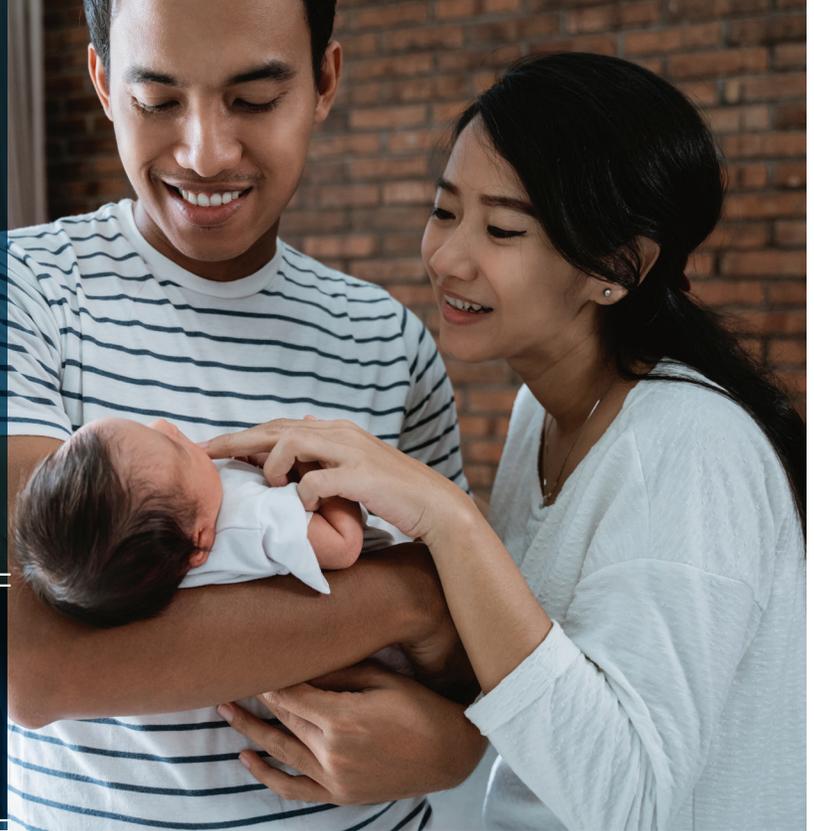

Administered by MetLife

PREMIUMS	24 PAY PERIODS	12 PAY PERIODS
Employee	$0.1455 per $10 weekly benefit, up to $1,200	$0.291 per $10 weekly benefit, up to $1,200

To calculate your premium rate, take your annual salary (or, if you are hourly, your hourly rate x 2088 annual hours) and multiply it by 0.7. Divide that number by 52, and that number by 10. Finally, if you are a 24 pay periods employee, multiply by 0.1455. Or, if you are a 12 pay periods employee, multiply by 0.291. The final result is your estimated premium per pay period.

For a full-time employee earning $16.50/hour on a 24 pay period schedule:

- $$16.50 \times 2088 \text{ annual hours} = $34,452.00$ (annual earnings)
- $$34,452.00 \times 0.7 = $24,116.40$ (short-term disability benefit)
- $$24,116.40 \div 52 = \463.78 (weekly benefit)
- $$463.78 \div 10 = \46.38 (value per $10)
- $$46.38 \times 0.1455 = \6.75 (estimated premium per pay period)

In the event of a disability due to an illness or injury that leaves you unable to work, this benefit helps protect your income by providing 70% of your monthly salary, up to a maximum of $1,200 per week.

- ▶ This plan has a six-month waiting period after your initial enrollment.
- ▶ After the waiting period, in the event of a disability, this plan has a seven-day elimination period.
- ▶ If your period of disability continues for more than 90 days, your premium is waived until you are no longer disabled and can return to work.
- ▶ Short-term disability insurance may be used for recovery after childbirth. The maximum benefit paid for birth is six weeks for a regular delivery, or eight weeks for a cesarean delivery.
- ▶ Short-term disability coordinates with any additional State income you may be receiving, such as worker's compensation or paid family medical leave.
- ▶ This policy has a provision for a trial return-to-work period. You will not have to restart the 7-day elimination period. For details, see the STD Summary Plan Description at the BHR website listed below.
- ▶ Premiums are made on an after-tax basis.
